

2017 HURRICANE SEASON: 6 MONTH REPORT

LONG-TERM RECOVERY IS UNDERWAY:

HURRICANE HARVEY, IRMA AND MARIA

It has now been just over 6 months since these three hurricanes impacted more than 25.8 million people in the US, causing more than $360 billion in damage. Experts estimate that each of the impacted regions has 8-12 years of recovery ahead. While this was one of the most devastating hurricane seasons on record, we also saw the public, private and nonprofit sectors come together, in previously unseen ways, to help restore and rebuild communities.

Good360's role in the disaster recovery arena is to fill gaps in product needs when they exist – we are focused on delivering the RIGHT GOODS to the RIGHT PEOPLE at the RIGHT TIME during all stages of a disaster, from the initial response phase through long-term recovery and rebuilding. We are now in the recovery stage in each of the impacted regions – Texas, Florida, Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands. More than $3.2 million in needed goods has been distributed in these areas in the last three months alone, bringing our total impact to more than $11 million in critically needed goods getting to those who have needed them most.

One notable donation was solar lamps provided by Citizen Watch to help in Puerto Rico. Our partner Niños De Nueva Esperanza distributed the lamps to families across the Sabana Seca neighborhood which meant that children could do their homework at night and a meal could be cooked after dark. Separately, a donation of Mattel toys contributed to the emotional relief of children during the holiday season. We partnered with United for Puerto Rico and Save the Children to distribute over $220,000 in toys to deserving children in Texas and Puerto Rico, giving them some joy in the wake of devastating loss.

In the last three months, we have made important progress with the support of our partners, both corporate donors and on-the-ground nonprofits. As we move closer to the 2018 hurricane season, it is imperative that strong partnerships have already been forged as already-impacted communities brace for a new season of storms.

What does the rest of 2018 look like?

With homes now under construction and residents' lives beginning to resume, Good360 has seen a dramatic shift in product needs for these hard-hit areas. Nonprofits are now in need of goods like lumber, tools, insulation, mattresses, paint, roofing and furniture.

Good360 is working with more than 50 organizations in these impacted regions and we are expanding our reach daily. In total, our partners have committed to rebuilding over 1,050 homes by the end of the calendar year. One of our partners, All Hands and Hearts – Smart Response, is embarking on their first ever apartment complex rebuild in Houston, Texas, which will guarantee low-cost housing options for those displaced by Hurricane Harvey.

In this 6-month status report, you will find an update focused on what we've accomplished since our last report three months ago. We thank all of our partners for your commitment and support for the individuals, families and communities impacted by these three devastating storms.

IMPACT STORIES

NICE-PAK AND ALL HANDS VOLUNTEERS HURRICANE MARIA

Good360 coordinated the delivery of Nice-Pak product including baby wipes and cleaning wipes to St. Thomas where All Hands and Hearts is assisting in debris removal, roof repair, water removal and mold remediation. People who were affected by the storms on the US Virgin Islands rely on teams such as the volunteers from All Hands and Hearts to help prep their homes for rebuilding. The families and volunteers who were involved in the clean-up of homes were able to use these wipes for personal hygiene and the salvaging of muddy toys, furniture and other family items pulled from the damage.

HARBOR LINENS AND HABITAT FOR HUMANITY SONOMA COUNTY CA FIRES

Harbor Linens was instrumental in helping Good360 send a large amount of product for families whose bedding had been destroyed or ruined by the smoke and soot during the fires. Sheets and towels are a critical but often overlooked necessity after a disaster. Victims are often displaced from their homes and no longer have reliable access to everyday items. Products that are usually taken for granted become sought after necessities in the event of a disaster. Thanks to Harbor Linens, who has been a consistent and thoughtful donor with Good360, we were able to provide these items to families who desperately needed them.

CITIZEN WATCH LUCI LIGHTS HURRICANE IRMA

Good360 has found reliable partners on the ground in Puerto Rico and USVI such as All Hands and Hearts, Crisis Response International and the Niños de Nueva Esperanza Community Center. The need for light sources was continually stressed as the most pressing need by these partners. Good360 set out to find a creative solution that would bring light to communities still lacking power and teamed up with Citizen Watch to address this situation. For more than 40 years, the innovative watch company has produced timepieces that are powered by natural and artificial light, eliminating the need for battery replacement. Under a partnership with Good360 last fall, every purchase of a Citizen watch on CitizenWatch.com or at their flagship store in Times Square in New York was matched by a donation of a Luci solar-powered light from MPOWERED. Citizen Watch pledged to donate a total of 5,000 Luci solar-powered lights to Good360 which would then be distributed to nonprofits on the ground in impacted regions.

IMPACT STORIES

GEN20 SOLAR GENERATOR AND CRI HURRICANE MARIA

Good360 teamed up with Crisis Response International (CRI), a nonprofit disaster relief organization that trains volunteers and mobilizes resources for disasters around the world, and Power Panel, a leading innovator in turnkey solar technology solutions. Good360 met Power Panel through our relationship with the Solar Energy Industries Association (SEIA), an organization looking for ways in which its industry members can make an impact in disaster-impacted regions. Together the three parties arranged the delivery of a mobile GEN2-O solar-thermal generator to Puerto Rico. The GEN2-O will bring power and hot water to Dos Bocas, a community that has been largely neglected because media attention had been focused on other nearby towns and larger cities.

MULTIPLE DONORS AND THE PROVISION GROUP HURRICANE HARVEY

The Provision Group's mission is to help with relief and hope during disasters, through distribution of goods, food, cleaning supplies, appliances, beds, etc. for those who have lost everything. Through a partnership with The Provision Group, Good360 was able to provide product donations such as Burt Bee's facial wipes, Ross clothing, Scotch Corp safety kits, RH furniture and MN Home Outlet electrical and plumbing supplies directly to communities who had lost nearly everything. The needs that arise after a disaster are varied and constantly changing. With Good360's access to donors who can provide the diverse array of needs and The Provision Group's connection within the community, the recovery process can be accelerated.

THANK YOU

The distribution of these needed goods and the resulting impact, as illustrated by the example stories above, was made possible by the following organizations who generously provided funding:
